A Tip to Butchers.

Use Pearline. Have your place a little neater and cleaner and sweeter than other places. Did you ever see a Parisian butcher shop? Well you can make yours just as dainty and attractive by taking a little trouble with Pearline. Isn't this worth some thing in these days of competition. But the foundation of all this cleanliness and the only thing that makes it possible is Pearline.

VERY NARROW ESCAPE

From Loss of Several Lives and Yacht Talfer.

Craft of Mr. F. P. Wood, of Bangor, Sunk by a Sound Freighter

Charlie Wood Rescued in Half Drowned Condition--Story of the Accident.

New York, May 5. At noon today four ship-wrecked sailors landed into the Marine hospital at the Bargo Office to have their cuts and bruises treated.

They had lost all their papers, clothes, jewelry and all personal belongings at 2 o'clock this morning when their vessel was cut down and sunk by the New Bedford line steamboat City of Lynchburg during a fog off Faulkners Island.

The men gave their names as Fred Higgason, cook, a Swede, of Brooklyn; Charles Bauer, a man of New Orleans; Charles Olsen, of Newark, N. J., and Captain Frank.

According to the men's story they composed the crew of the schooner yacht Talfer owned by Mr Frank P. Wood of Bangor, Maine. They sailed from New York last Friday bound for Bangor to fit out and cruise. About half past one o'clock this morning, half fog, horn was answered by a steamer siren.

Seaman Bauer said he was lying on a couch in the saloon at the time. He started up the companionway ladder in his underclothes. Half way up the ladder he was thrown down by the shock of a concussion and before he could pick himself up he was almost drowned by an immense body of water. He was washed about the saloon for three or four minutes and dashed against the woodwork and furniture.

He heard cries of distress from their only passenger, Charles Wood, the 14-year-old son of the owner. Charlie was in bed in the stateroom on the port side of the yacht.

His stateroom door opened outward into the saloon but the immense body of water in the stateroom prevented the door being opened so it was forced in and the half drowned boy was rescued. He was carried up on deck in his night clothes and all hands got aboard the starboard lifeboat, the captain being the last to leave the sinking yacht.

They were picked up by the freighter which cut them down and were brought to this port.

GREATER NEW YORK.

Gov. Black Signs the Charter Bill—The Principal Features of the Measure

Albany, N. Y., May 5. Gov. Black did today affix his signature to the Greater New York charter bill.

Briefly put Greater New York consists of five boroughs, Manhattan, Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond, which are in turn subdivided into ten council districts. The mayor will be elected for four years at a salary of $10,000 per year, instead of for two years at $10,000 as at present. With the exception of the comptroller, who will be elected by popular vote, all municipal officers will be appointed by the mayor, who can remove at will during the first six months of his tenure. There will be one police force, under a bipartisan board of four as at present. The department of public works, police and water supply, sewers, bridges and street bureaus will replace their heads to be appointed by the mayor.

There will be a municipal legislature of two houses, the council and assembly.

Brooklyn and Long Island City are names no longer known on the map.

Greater New York covers a territory of 365 square miles 50 miles long and 10 miles wide with an estimated population of about 3,100,000, second in both respects only to London. The first mayor will be elected November 2 next.

SENATE COMMITTEES.

The Republicans Finally Filled Them Wednesday.

Large Number of Changes in Membership and Chairmanships.

Naturally Some Disappointment and Protests Were Numerous.

Washington, May 5. The Republican Senators held a caucus today and adopted the report of the committee on committees. The important changes are as follows:

Sewall of New Jersey to Appropriations, Gallinger of New Hampshire to Commerce, Burrows of Michigan to Finance, Clark of Wyoming and Jones of Ohio to Foreign Relations, Spooner of Wisconsin to Judiciary, Carter of Montana relinquishes Interstate Commerce to Elkins of West Virginia and takes the latter's place on Military Affairs and Territories, Platt of New York and Hanna of Ohio, are added to the Naval Affairs, Lodge to Indian Affairs, Spooner of Wisconsin to Privileges and Elections, Nelson of Minnesota to Public Lands.

By changes in chairmanships the following senators place as follows:

Gorman, Carter, Cockrell, Daniel, Harris, Jones, Mills, Morgan, Pettigrew, Turpie, Vest, Walthall, Wilson.

Republicans: Allison, Bacon, Burrows, Cullom, Davis, Dubois, Fairbanks, Faulkner, Foraker, Frye, Gallinger, Gear, Grey, Hale, Hanna, Hawley, Hoar, Lindsay, Lodge, McBride, McMillan, Mitchell, Morrill, Nelson, Pasco, Perkins, Platt (Conn.), Platt (N. Y.), Pritchard, Proctor, Smith, Spooner, Thurston, Turpie, Wolcott, Warren, Wellington, Wetmore, Wilson—total 43.

Nay—Baker, Bate, Butler, Carter, Cockrell, Daniel, Hansbrough, Harris of Kansas, Harris of Tenn., Heitfield, Jones of Arkansas, Jones, Nevada, Kyle, Martin, Mason, Mills, Morgan, Pettigrew, Pettus, Quay, Roach, Shoup, Stewart, White—total 19.

A total of 60 votes was cast, leaving Senator Wolcott who did not respond. The positions for which candidates were as follows, two affirmative Senators being paired with one negative Senator in most instances.

Chandler and Clark for with Teller against. Hill and Turner for with Carter against. Sewall and Kyle for with Mantell against. George was paired for the treaty and Berry against it.

Treaty not announced for the following: Aldrich, Cannon, Elkins, Gorman, Murphy, Wolcott, Kenny and Allen.

The vote was preceded by a short spirited debate, introduced by Mills of Texas who made a strong appeal against ratifying.

He held that as long as these articles remained unchanged England justly could claim that questions of territorial rights were still included within the scope of the treaty.

Mr Carter advised the Senate to let well enough alone.

Mr White remarked that the document was full of illogical propositions and said its syntax would have to be improved before it would be acceptable.

The Senate

Washington, May 5. The opening session of the Senate today was devoted to the consideration of the sundry civil bill which was not completed up to the time of adjournment. Among the amendments postponed was one suspending the order of President Cleveland including many millions of acres of forest reserve.

Mr Deboe of Kentucky, took the oath of office at the opening of the session and was cordially received by his associates.

The sundry civil appropriation bill was then taken up. Mr Allison offered an amendment to the item for a survey of the Nicaragua canal route so the proposed commission shall consist of from three to five members from the army or navy or civil life at the President's discretion.

Mr Berry, of Arkansas, asserted that the amendment was an effort to reflect on the United States engineers who had reported against the Nicaragua canal project.

Mr Morgan of Alabama, chairman of the Nicaragua Canal Committee, defended the amendment saying it was desirable to give the President the widest latitude, that he could turn to Ben Craighill, a former chief of engineers and those who had built the Chicago Drainage Canal.

Mr Hawley (Rep., Conn.) proposed an amendment that at least one engineer from the army and one from the navy, active or retired, be included in the commission. The item went over for consideration later.

Considerable civil service discussion followed the introduction of an amendment by Mr Wilson of Washington requiring the appointment of commissioners of locality Northern Pacific lands in the Northwest shall be with the consent of the Senate.

Mr Gorman urged that this was an effort to take the offices out of the civil service. The amendment was finally modified and adopted so that the appointees shall be confirmed by the Senate and shall be divided between the political parties.

Mr Morgan offered an amendment appropriating $10,000 for the improvement of Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Mr Aldrich (Rep., R. I.) said he sympathized with the purposes of the amendment, but it should not be put on this bill as a similar item had been rejected by the House last year.

Mr Morgan said the House might change its attitude. The amendment was agreed to.

At 2 10 p. m. the Senate went into executive session. The open session was resumed at 4 10 p. m. and the sundry civil bill was again taken up.

Mr Pettigrew, of South Dakota, offered an amendment authorizing the President to suspend the order of President Cleveland withdrawing millions of acres from the public domain and constituting them forest reserves. The amendment also proposed an appropriation of $450,000 for surveys of the lands.

Mr Pettigrew added that assurance had been given he would not say from whom that if the amendment was adopted the President would suspend the order. In response to a statement by Mr Gorman that a point of order would be made against the amendment, Mr Pettigrew declared that if the amendment went out on a point of order he would see that the pending bill did not pass until some relief was given as to the order creating forest reservations.

Mr Carter (Rep., Mont.) criticised the action of President Cleveland and pointed out the serious results which had occurred. The Senator said efforts had been made to have the order set aside, but as this course might be construed as discourteous to the former President, it was deemed advisable to have a law which would correct the situation.

Final action on the amendment was deferred.

At 5 15 p. m. the Senate adjourned.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Reactionary Condition on Wednesday With Loss on Day's Transactions.

New York, May 5. Today's market was reactionary throughout and very many stocks show a loss of a point or over on the day's transactions, the gain of yesterday being for the most part lost. The activity of the dealings was also considerably diminished as compared with yesterday.

The turbulent rush to cover shorts last night left the interest largely depleted in today's market and there was no resulting pressure to buy. The principle motive of the selling was undoubtedly a view held yesterday that the tariff bill was assured of a speedy enactment into law.

Reports found currency early in the day of expressions of dissatisfaction with the bill by prominent members of the House of Representatives.

The day was marked by a further decline in the exchange demand touching $4 85, and sixty days $4 85½. Some of the leading railroad issues showed losses approximately in most cases were: Sugar 1½, tobacco, 1, Western Union 2½, Manhattan 2½, Missouri Pacific 1 to 1½, which is the lowest on record. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and New Jersey Central 1½. The average loss on the leading railway shares was ¾.

Chicago Gas was strong in face of the market and rose 1½, but reacted ¾. Brooklyn Union Gas also advanced 1½ and jumped 1½, but lost the advance.

Industrial bonds was moderately active with slight concessions generally in the speculative issues. Business was largely restricted to the principal issues with sales of Atchison issues by continental interests quite marked. The sales were $210,000. Government bonds were slightly firmer in tone with the total sales aggregating $11,000.

THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1897

STATE OF MAINE.

ARBOR DAY.

A PROCLAMATION.

By the Governor.

The statutes of our State wisely declare that the Governor shall annually set apart a day to the spring as Arbor Day, for the planting of trees, shrubs and vines. Shade trees and shrubs add much to the beauty of our cities and villages and to the comfort and elegance of our homes. To the end that their planting should be encouraged by concentrated action, this day has been established. I therefore appoint MONDAY, the tenth day of May next, to be observed as Arbor Day, and I recommend that all the people of our State show a commendable zeal in promoting the objects for which this day is designed, by devoting the time to planting ornamental trees and shrubs along their streets, in public parks and other places and around their homes.

Given at the Executive Chamber, in Augusta, this thirty-first day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-first.

LLEWELLYN POWERS.

By the Governor,
BYRON BOYD,
Secretary of State.

The Amended Tariff.

The tariff bill as reported from the Senate Finance Committee is changed in many respects, some of the amendments having doubtless been incorporated in the interest of prompt action on the part of the committee. The lumber schedule, in which Maine people have so large an interest, is practically the same in its general features as when it passed the House. One effect in the reduction of duties made in the original bill and the removal of the retroactive clause is the imposition of a duty on tea, a strictly revenue tax. This is, however, limited in its operation, the date of expiration being fixed at 1900, but we doubt if it will be found in the bill in its final form as it is bound to arouse much opposition. A duty is also placed upon olives, which have been the subject of much controversy, with a drawback on exports.

When the Senate gets down to business, then and not until then will it be possible to form an accurate opinion of the real purpose of that body. As the bill stands to-day it will be the subject of considerable criticism so far as many of the schedules are concerned, but as we said above some of these amendments were in the nature of concessions that are open to modification in the final shaping of the bill in the Senate. The Government must have revenue and the country demands protection and both of these features must be fully recognized in any measure that is to stand the test of public opinion. There is no occasion for any Senator to be deceived by the clatter in a few Mugwump papers. The people have spoken and the verdict was sufficiently emphatic to make their views clear on the tariff question.

Failure of Treaty.

The much discussed vote in the Senate on the arbitration treaty was taken Wednesday and resulted in failure to ratify the same. The vote stood forty-three to twenty-six, a majority of seventeen in favor of the treaty, but less than the two-thirds required by the constitution. This result will be a disappointment to the people many of whom have by letter and petition urged upon the Senate the importance of ratification.

Rushing Importations.

A Washington despatch says that the treasury figures for the month just ended confirm Chairman Dingley's statement made a few days ago, that there is likely to be nearly a year's supply of foreign goods in the country when the new tariff bill gets into effect. While the retrospective clause, so called, of the Dingley bill, probably prevented some of the new contracts which would have been made and the new orders which would have been given, it did not reduce the amount of goods brought in during April, as compared with the preceding month. That clause of the bill provided that the new rates of duty should apply upon all goods coming in after April 1 which had not been purchased prior to that date. This, of course, permitted all goods contracted for or ordered prior to April 1 to come in under Wilson law rates, and also left it largely to the hands of the importers to indicate by their own statements whether goods coming in after April 1 had been purchased or ordered prior to that date.

The result of these conditions is that the April importations have been phenomenally large, larger than those of any other month since the Wilson law began to pour its flood of foreign goods into the country. The importations of foreign goods during the month of April will foot up a total of about $85,000,000 in value. Those of March were in value $76,372,831. The customs collections for the month were $2,000,000 more than for March, and the importation of non-dutiable merchandise, especially wool and hides, increased very much during the month.

The following table covering the importations into the United States during the past nine months indicates the hot haste with which foreign manufacturers and home importers have filled the warehouses of the United States preparatory to the advance of duties contemplated by the new tariff:

August, 1896	$49,438,190
September	50,955,390
October	56,467,210
November	56,013,280
December	58,886,860
January, 1897	71,364,010
February	64,388,960
March	76,372,831
April (estimated)	85,000,000

While the increase has been especially noticeable by reason of the increase in customs receipts, the growth has been even greater than is thus shown because of the fact that importers have naturally increased their orders of goods now on the free list which they have reason to believe will be placed upon the dutiable list under the new law.

That there has been an enormous increase in the importation of articles upon the free list is shown by the following table:

Importation of non-dutiable articles from August 1, 1896, to May 1, 1897:

August, 1896	[illegible]
September	[illegible]
October	[illegible]
November	[illegible]
December	[illegible]
January, 1897	[illegible]
February	[illegible]
March	[illegible]
April (estimated)	[illegible]

That the election of a Republican President and Congress proved a signal for instant activity on the part of the importers and for immediate preparations for flooding the country with foreign goods before a new law could go into effect is shown not alone by the above figures, but by the increase in customs receipts.

The growth in these since the month in which President McKinley was elected has been remarkable, as will be seen by the following table.

Customs receipts from November, 1896, to May 1, 1897:

November, 1896	$[illegible]
December	16,779,012
January, 1897	17,878,874
February	11,561,260
March	22,383,556
April	24,434,251

Another evidence of the instantaneous effect of the election of President McKinley and a Republican Congress upon the importation of goods now upon the free list and likely to be transferred to the dutiable list by the Republican Congress is shown in the percentage tables of the Bureau of Statistics, which indicate the percentage of the total importations which come in free of duty. The relative increase of importation of non-dutiable goods is shown with special clearness by this table.

Table showing the proportion of foreign importations brought in free of duty from August 1, 1896, to May 1, 1897:

	Per cent.
August, 1896	[illegible]
September	[illegible]
October	[illegible]
November	[illegible]
December	[illegible]
January, 1897	[illegible]
February	[illegible]
March	[illegible]
April (partly estimated)	[illegible]

The increase in importations, especially since it became known that Congress was to meet immediately after the inauguration of President McKinley, and take up the tariff bill, is shown by a comparison of the customs receipts of March and April of the present year with those months in the three preceding years. This is shown by the following table:

Customs receipts during March and April, 1894 to 1897, inclusive:

1894	$21,635,675
1895	[illegible]
1896	25,150,947
1897	[illegible]

While the increased importation in dutiable goods is shown by the above table that of the non-dutiable goods is not indicated by the figures which it contains. The following table, however, gives the importation of articles free of duty in March and April during the past three years.

Importation of non-dutiable goods in March and April, 1895 to 1897, inclusive:

1895	$[illegible]
1896	58,614,000
1897 (April partly estimated)	90,000,000

Cuckoo Misrepresentation.

[New York Sun.]

Cuckoos trying to twist the people's recollection of the campaign of 1896, by asserting that protection was suppressed from it, and that the Republicans are guilty of bad faith in their preparation of a new tariff, will find fresh evidence of their error in the BANGOR WHIG AND COURIER. The Hon. Charles A. Boutelle's journal recalls the fact that in the early part of the canvass, the Hon. William C. Whitney complained publicly that protection was being advocated so prominently that the gold Democrats, for whom he spoke, were in danger of becoming antagonistic to the representative of honest money. But did McKinley or Reed, or any other big Republican abate his expressions of interest in protection after Mr. Whitney's warning? Not a bit. It was indeed fortunate that the protection sentiment was on the sound money side and not against it.

THE POSTAL CONGRESS.

Sixty Countries Represented at the Meeting in Washington.

Proceedings of the Session of the Opening Day.

Washington, May 5.—The Universal Postal Congress met today in the great hall of the old Corcoran art gallery. About 60 countries, comprising most of those in the postal union were represented. Koren, China and the Orange Free State, which are now outside the pale of the union, had delegates present.

It is expected that the work of the Congress will extend over about six weeks. Most of the work will be transacted by committees which will submit the result of their labors to a congress about a week hence. The present postal agreement will be revised and renewed.

The hall presented a brilliant appearance when Gen. Batchelder, the premier delegate of the United States called the Congress to order at 11 o'clock.

The sessions of the Congress were held behind closed doors. Postmaster General Gary, Assistant Postmaster General Heath, Gen. Batchelder and Capt. Brooks did the honors. Postmaster General Gary delivered the address of welcome.

Welcome by Postmaster General Gary.

Postmaster General Gary said in part:

"Gentlemen—I tender you a hearty greeting in the name of the United States and welcome you to the capital of this great and growing nation.

"Whatever conduces to the spread of intelligence, the encouragement of the arts of peace, the enlightenment of the people of all countries, the extension of commerce and the consequent cementing of fraternal ties between the nations, meet with the commendation of the people in whose behalf I extend this welcome.

"I salute you as the representatives of advanced and advancing civilization. Before you depart for your respective homes we hope to bring you into closer communication with our people, among whom you will find the former citizens and subjects of all nations of the earth and their descendants. Scarcely a delegate in her today who may not receive a cordial hospitable welcome from natives of his own country."

Mr. Gary then proceeded to speak somewhat in extenso of the area of this country, its people and its resources, adding:

"By carrying back to your homes the knowledge that all these millions of people are anxious to establish the closest general and business relations with each of the countries you represent, you will convey some idea of the value of the mission you have met to promote."

Then he continued:

"Postmaster General Blair on August 1, 1862, in a communication addressed to Mr. Seward, then secretary of state, proposed an international conference of postal delegates to recommend measures looking to the revision, simplification and uniformity of international postal arrangements, and the department of state submitted the proposition to the governments of Great Britain, France, Prussia, Sweden, The Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Ecuador.

"Favorable responses were received from all the governments named and at Paris on the second day of the following May the first international conference assembled.

"Out of this idea of an international conference, grew the large idea of a permanent universal postal union, and the first congress of this union met in the hall of the national council of Switzerland in September, 1874. The treaty creating this union went into effect on the first of July, 1875.

"In congratulating our government and our people upon being the host of this, probably the most representative of all the civilized nations of the earth, that has ever assembled, I can therefore express our profound pride that the idea creating this union originated with us."

"The universal postal union is young in years, but phenomenal in successes and achievements. It is the outgrowth of separate treaties between different national organizations, each compact differing in some essential respects from all others. Only 23 years ago, in the city of Berne, at the foot of the Alps, the delegates from a few nations met and laid deep and solid the foundations of this union and we are rapidly approaching the realization of their dream.

"There a reason to believe that by the time this conference adjourns will not rise on a civilized people with an organized government, which is not included in the wise and beneficent jurisdiction of the Universal Postal Union. Representatives from countries not in the union, notably those from China and Korea, are present and ready to join your brotherhood and become coworkers with you.

"Since the Congress of Vienna official notices of the death of some of its honored members have been sent out by the International Bureau at Berne—such conspicuous names as Hefstdly, director general of posts and telegraphs of the Netherlands; of Lund, the late director general of the posts of Denmark; of Sir Arthur Lockwood, secretary of the general post-office at London; of Eugene Borel, the accurate, scholarly, accomplished and efficient director of the international bureau at Berne, and of Dr. von Stephan, the imperial director of the posts of Germany, a man of wide learning and wisdom and exceptional general resources, the acknowledged postal head of the world, the Bismarck of the post. Those to whom I have referred, have left a precious legacy of delightful memories and obstructions removed and have surveyed and made straight the highways upon which you are to travel in reaching the goal they set up for your ambition.

"Some important questions will be brought to your attention which are not likely to be decided by unanimous vote—the question of reducing the rates of international postage will become before you. To the consideration of these grave propositions I invite your careful attention, confident that your decision thereon, as well as on the other subjects, will be wise and profitable for all the countries concerned.

"Again welcoming you to this capital, wishing for each of you a pleasant sojourn among us and a safe return to your homes, at the conclusion of a profitable session, I declare the fifth congress of the Universal Postal Union opened, and ask you to organize by nominating a president to conduct your deliberations."

THE MAYNARD MURDER.

A Strong Case Being Made Out Against Barnes.

Lowell, Mass., May 5.—Testimony in the trial of Lorenzo Barnes, for the murder of John Dewey, also of Lowell, was overwhelming. It is the general opinion that the government is making a strong case and gradually forging a chain of evidence that will positively result in the conviction of Barnes.

Thus far the movements of Barnes have been traced from the time of the murder and his actions in the saloon and on the night following the crime. Himself, movements, conversation, his expenditures, etc., have all been traced.

The third day of the trial attracted a very large crowd. Prof. Wood of Harvard was the last witness for the defendant and was cross-examined by Mr. Morse. The morning he testified regarding his analysis of the blood stains found on clothing and articles worn by Barnes. He gave expert testimony as to the stains of the rubber boots which were found in the lee, where they had been thrown by Barnes after he had murdered Dewey.

Prof. Wood testified that all on shoes the spots were those of human blood. They had been chemically analyzed and he was positive of this fact. He also testified that the blood stains on the rubber boots come at right angles, which bears out the theory of the government that the murderer had worn the boots and that the dewey was dragged from his hospital right to the lee.

Prof. Wood testified that the bloody spots of blood on the inside of the boots which had evidently taken place in a short direction.

Prof. Wood, of Harvard, was very sharply cross-examined in regard to the difference between human blood and the blood of the lower animals. The said blood of some animals can be so distinguished that can tell the difference between human blood and that of other animals. Prof. Wood testified that he could not be positive that the blood stains were not those of a dog. The blood stains were far more than a dozen days old when he examined them on Dec. 21.

Frank Burton, with whom Barnes had claimed to have been in company, testified that he never confessed to Barnes that he had not been chopping wood on Dec. 17 and that Barnes's statements in regard to working with Burton were false.

Constable Howard Clifton, of Lowell, testified to conversations which Barnes held with Officer Fitzmaurice in his presence. Regarding the money and property found in his boots, Barnes said that he would have announced that if money had not been interrupted.

Dr. Rich, Officer Sheehan and Officer Whitney were recalled in order to identify some of their testimony of Monday. The court then adjourned until 9 o'clock.

When we read of a mother who leaves her newborn babe shivering on a door step unguarded from the elements and to suffer at the mercy of strangers we wonder at her cold heart and lack of mother love. There are other ways, than desperate ones, for a woman to rid herself of her burden when faced with bright prospects and who will take proper care of her and herself. Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the best medicine for women in the world. They regulate the entire system, cure irregularities, prevent miscarriage and kindred ailments, and make childbirth comparatively easy. They are the only pills for women, being guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case or money returned. They are sugar coated, small and easy to take. Any druggist will supply you with them.

Washington News Notes

Hon Frank Hatch of Governor Tanner of Illinois, about his failure to receive proper consideration while attending the Grant ceremonies in New York amuses Illinois people in Washington says the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. If the truth must be told, they poke a little fun at their Governor and his staff without in any way discrediting the sterling qualities of Governor Tanner. He is a strong character and has advanced from running a sawmill to the executive chair of a great state. His fondness for display, however is a weakness on which his friends do not hesitate to comment. When Governor Tanner and his staff came to Washington to attend the inauguration they were gorgeous with new uniforms. Each member of the staff took pride in that uniform. They called on their friends and incidentally did show how much their uniforms had cost. Several of them happened to be old acquaintances of Beriah Wilkins of The Washington Post. He was talking to a call: one day when he glanced out of the window and saw one of the staff, resplendent in gilt and gold lace and other trimmings mounting the steps. "I will wager you the cigars, he said to his caller that Colonel —— who is just coming in will tell me what his uniform cost. And I'll wager another box that he will say it cost $100." The wager was not taken but everything came to pass just as Mr Wilkins had said. As Colonel —— of Governor Tanner's staff disappeared Mr Wilkins remarked: "In long must be a profitable business in Illinois. I take the seventh number of the staff who paid $100 for his uniform." Governor Tanner and his staff have very far long since ceased to be the butt of jokes. When they were in Washington they demonstrated that all around they had cost Uncle Sam not a cent for their entertainment at Fort Myer. Their requisitions were not honored and some of them confidentially said that they were pulled by local divertisements taking up with the dive and dive resorts and saloons.

Excuse my kick hand, said a man who was being introduced to Governor Tanner a number of people at the Ebbitt House. He was a tall under the ordinary stature. There was no smile above the request to excuse his left hand seemed to be necessary. It was Governor Smith, of Wisconsin. He was wounded in the war and his right arm was rendered almost useless. Notwithstanding this Scofield's left handed shake is well known in Wisconsin and he did elevate him to the Governor's chair. He was a lumberman and had served in the State Senate. His shock hands so successfully that when the convention met the other candidates were forced to yield the nomination to him.

Governor Scofield, said a Wisconsin politician, probably has a prison record equal to any person in the United States. It is a creditable record too, for it was made in ohd prisons. I think he was a round dozen of them that he served in. He was taken prisoner early in the war and was transferred from one to another. Every time they kept getting him further and further South and out strangled after another of the Confederacy fell. Finally they shut him up at Columbia, N.C. The rebels were too busy looking out for themselves at that to take him further South. So he was there when General Sherman came along and opened the prison doors. It had been a pretty rough experience and there was not much of Scofield left except skin and bones. But he went up to the Wisconsin lumber camps, succeeded in business, got into politics and became Governor, and a mighty good Governor he makes, too. We are all proud of him.

The opening of the Tennessee Centennial Exposition at Nashville on Saturday calls to mind the efforts of the Tennessee delegation in Congress to push through the appropriation which made this exposition an accomplished fact. The Tennessee members of the House will always feel grateful to the Speaker, who so far as possible, made the way clear for the appropriation bill. Mr Reed concurred with the idea of the exposition and wished to make it a success. But he was not disposed to go outside of the centennial sentiment in encouraging other appropriations for Tennessee—a fact which Representative Joseph Washington discovered, much to his disappointment. Mr Washington desired to get through a claim for $100,000 to pay the Methodist Publishing House at Nashville for buildings destroyed by troops during the war. It was in the waning hours of the last session, and naturally Mr Washington felt no little about his claim. After trying in vain to get unanimous consent to consider the bill, the matter was drawn over another week to Mr Reed and said to the Speaker:

"Mr Speaker, I have tried all day to get this matter before the House, but I find I cannot do so. I have a bill for the relief of the Methodist Publishing House, and I want to make a request."

"Mr Speaker, I have tried all day to get this matter before the House, but I find I cannot do so. I have a bill for the relief of the Methodist Publishing House, and I want to make a request."

TWO HUNDRED DEAD.

Further Particulars of the Fearful Catastrophe in Paris.

Graphic Account of the Terrible Scenes by an Eye Witness.

Paris May 5—The terrible fire at the Grand Bazaar de Charité Tuesday has thrown the capital into mourning. The confusion is believed to have caused the loss of over 200 lives. An official despatch is sent early Wednesday morning 111 charred corpses have been recovered together with twelve portions of bodies whose identity has not been established.

Since two o'clock this morning crowds of people have been flocking to the Pont de l'Alma, where many of the bodies and a long number of the injured were taken. At six o'clock a detachment of the Garde Republicaine relieved the detachment of infantry which had been on duty all night long at the scene of the catastrophe.

The search for the dead and the rescue of the living goes on with redoubled vigor. Quantities of cooked meats, chickens and bread have been picked up in the charred masses of burned wood and mud.

At 8 o'clock there was a concourse towards the corner of the ruins and another body was slowly drawn from the black mass. It was little more than a mass of charred and blackened flesh. The sight is entirely indescribable. Only the trained eyes of the police could tell the sex of the victim. Only the most experienced could tell that it was a human being. The spectacle is so horrible that the police were compelled to use force to keep the crowd back. Hundreds of people have come to the morgue to search for their relatives among the victims. Many of them have fainted at the sight.

Witnessed Whole Scene.

Mlle Marguerite Hellis, the well known actress, who was in the employ of the Rothschilds, was present in the capacity of a spectator. She says:

At six minutes past four yesterday I saw the Comtesse de Reiset and the Countess Greffulhe arriving. The Countess had a little son with them, for fear of the structure being burned. The Countess had hardly disappeared in the bazaar when I saw the flames burst out. The fire spread with terrible rapidity. The people in the crowd at the risk of burning themselves tore the burning clothing from the persons of the children, as the latter should in terror through the streets.

As the flames became unbearable I made my way to some open ground between the Avenue de l'Alma and the quai Bayard and joined a long file of women who were trying to rescue people from the flames by means of a ladder.

Heartrending Cries.

While the work of rescue was in progress heartrending cries from the rear attracted me. I saw women with just escaped from the flames were falling, writhing on the ground in the agony of death. With my friend I went to the place of burning and helped to carry the victims out of the way.

Forty persons sought refuge in Baron Rothschild's house. I helped to carry down several women who were almost broken. Some of them had lost their children. Men, women and children passed up and down before the house of black bodies, cruelly scorched, terrible remnants of humanity. Then throwing their own lives by the side of some seemingly unrecognizable form which they took out to be more easily identified.

The Recognized Victims.

So far as known the following bodies have been recognized:

Mlle Henrietta Hellis and the Baroness Elizabeth St. Malin, the Viscomtesse Mark Bernard, Sister Gunouvre, the superior of the sisters of the Convent of St Vincent de Paul at Rubey, Mlle Degrancy, the Comtesse de St Pierre, the Baroness St Didier, Mme Laurent Gsell, Mlle Cheveigne, Mme Lorrain, wife of the Spanish consul, the Comtesse Mermiel, the Comtesse Broderille, Mme Victor Cosselin, Sister Leonie, Mme Hausemann, Mme Schlumberger, the Comtesse Humonstin, the Marquise de Dion Moison, Mme Vermenault, Mme Hesilee, wife of the well known Russian banker, Mme Potter, Mlle Jacques Hassmann, the daughters of M Shelby, Mme Muriat Grancy.

Among the severely injured are the following: The Duchesse de la Torre, the Countess de Rainey, the Countess de Clinchamp, the Comtesse de Divisy, Mme Meed, Mme Recamier, Mme de Lamy, Mme Hyenne, Mme Lionard Andre, Mme de la Tour Dupin, Mme Mulezi x M Lefevre.

It should be understood that the list contains several names of persons who are only believed to have been killed and is therefore subject to revision.

The following additional names of the identified dead is furnished subject to the understanding that in some cases the identification is not complete:

Duchesse de St Didier, Baron Cabrol, Mlle St Martin, Baron de Launement, Baron de Mackau, Comtesse de Mun, Comtesse de Serurier, Comtesse de Geffelle, Comtesse de la Blotterie, Comtesse de Villin, Comtesse de Sibersac, Comtesse Carvon Latour, Vicomtesse de Malozieux, Mme Mereau, Herson and four daughters, Mme de Strange, Mme Lefebvre, Mme Berges, Mme de Grandmaison, Mme Bernard, Mme Du Fresne, Mme de Marnival, Mme Cornulier de Mazilis, Mme Nicol, Mme Le Clerc, Mme de Hovre, Mme Marie Clotilde, Mme Kelly, Mme Cohen, Mme Louise Lonin and Mme Tillin, Mme de Valdeter, Mme de Clermont, Mme Vincent, Mme de Narin Ville, Mme Lagrand, Mme Hervar, Mlle Jaquin, Mlle Verhaas, Mlle M Schlatter, M Joseph Doron, M Leon Guillaumet, M Jacques Hassmann, Geo Meunier, Pasteur Marbeau, Baron de Shonsky, the Comte de Chonnel, Vicomte du Stil Pierrer, Vicomte de Cheveigne, Mme Hivlers, Mme Dion, Mme de Vanvenargues, Mme Le Normant, Mme de Vatinenil, Mme Moutl, Mme Pierre Bonne, Mme Cuvifer, Mme Lepin, Mme de Gossolin, Mme Bouton, Mme de Mustiers, Mme Bravo, Mme Founy, Mme Prayer, Mme Gerard, Mlle Sugnot, Mlle Madeleine Larocour, Mlle Luther Cuvillier, Mlle Carthoren, Mlle de Grancy, Sister Gilbin, Sister Virginie Thomazeau, mother superior of Sisters of St. Andrew, Sister Julie, Gabrill, Mme de Montbillier, Mme Clavigy, Mme de Vallence.

Doubtless the Betrothal Ring.

Among the articles picked up in the ruins was a ring inscribed "Ferdinand d'Orleans—Sophie de Bavière," the names of the Duke and Duchesse d'Alençon, undoubtedly the betrothal ring of Her Highness the Duchesse d'Alençon. The body of the duchess however has not been found. The houses in the vicinity of the scene of the disaster are being carefully searched in the hope that the duchesse is only injured and is being tended at some private residence. All night the Duc d'Alençon refused to quit the scene and only went home after daybreak because he was physically incapable of further exertion.

The Queen of Naples and other relatives of the missing Duchesse sat up all night in the hotel of the Duc d'Alençon on the avenue Friedland, awaiting news.

President Faure was in constant communication with the prefect of police who forwarded to him the names of the identified dead and those of the injured. The prefect of police despatched orderly officers everywhere to inquire into the condition of the injured and hearing that a number of the latter had been taken to the hospital Beaujon the president at 7.30 o'clock proceeded there to console them.

In the court yard of the hospital President Faure met the surgeons who were attending the injured and thanked them for their devotion. Mme Flores, the wife of the Spanish consul, expired just as President Faure reached her bedside.

An extraordinary cabinet meeting will be held this evening.

Many Tales of Bravery.

Many tales of bravery are told. Mme Sheldrick was saved by her husband who at least as he had placed her in safety, on the roof, went back to the burning building in order to save his daughter, who, almost blinded by the smoke, had reached the stairs when they were caught in the terrible flames. Her father was compelled to leave the spot of the disaster by a sunstroke. Mme Lefebvre, who lost her daughter, fainted at the moment she had given the last rites to her child. She was on her knees in the street when a fire ran caught her and she escaped in extinguishing her clothes from which she had to be dragged by a policeman who had lost sight of her.

The Marquise de l'Aigle was rescued by a fireman at the moment she had given the last rites to her child. She was on her knees in the street when a fire ran caught her and she escaped in extinguishing her clothes from which she had to be dragged by a policeman who had lost sight of her.

Sisters of Charity Injured.

Several sisters of charity are known to be among the dead and injured. The injured list is not to include. The Viscomtesse de Divisy, the Marquise de Lasbesse, in critical condition, Mme Rafaelli, wife of the well known painter, fractured her leg. Sisters escaped injury. Mme Raffelli, daughter of the painter, fractured her leg. Mme Mathilde Hellis, who is blistered. Mlle Lamiole was severely burned in out the back and head.

An eye witness describes the scene as follows: "The women mostly were light as the men and those who escaped from the furnace were screaming like hell. The fires of many children were covered with blood. A number of women of the poorer classes suffered in the crowd at the risk of burning themselves tore the burning clothing from the persons of the children as the latter should in terror through the streets.

"As the fire became unbearable I made my way to some open ground between the Avenue de l'Alma and the quai Bayard and joined a long file of women who were trying to rescue people from the flames by means of a ladder.

Identified by Relatives.

CROP CONDITIONS

Review of Correspondence of Weather Bureau

Washington May 5—Weather bureau in its review of correspondence for the week ended May 3 says:

Throughout the states of the central valleys the week has been too cool for germination of seeds and for plant growth of vegetation but it has been more favorable on the Atlantic coast although rather cool in the Middle Atlantic states. In the Rocky mountain states and in Oregon the week was decidedly in favorable but in Washington it was somewhat too cool although favorable for farm work.

Complaints of the Atlantic coast are now in progress as far north as New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Practically no wheat has been planted in Ohio, Indiana and Iowa but in the southern states the crop is well advanced. In the states north of the Ohio and Missouri rivers considerable plowing is in progress compared with 1896, when at this date planting was in progress in Ohio and Michigan.

Wheat is not in promising condition in the middle Atlantic states and generally in the eastern states. In southern Kansas and Oklahoma and generally throughout the southern states wheat is now in fine condition. In Washington and Oregon the outlook for wheat is promising. Spring wheat is not favorable in Dakotas and the northern portions of the spring wheat region, and over the southern portion the crop is growing in.

Cotton has been unfavorably affected by cool weather in the Atlantic states and generally in the southern states. Cotton is also suffering for the want of rain in portions of the cotton belt and in Texas, cotton is coming up very unevenly. In the northern portion of the cotton belt in Texas the greater part of the week was too cool for germination and growth, but the southern portion reported better conditions.

Yale May Send Second Crew

Boston May 5—A special to the Herald from New Haven Conn says: Although Yale will row this year with Harvard and Cornell on the Hudson, the test race in June is not to be the last race between Yale and Harvard. Yale will meet Harvard on the Thames early in June, and the Harvard crew will be sent to New York or Marblehead (Mass.) to meet Cornell. Yale will send a second crew to New London and a freshman crew will be sent to Poughkeepsie to meet Cornell. The Yale authorities are considering the matter.

Attachments Placed on Gloucester Property

Gloucester Mass May 5—Attachments aggregating $40,000 have been placed on property owned by Mr T. D. Rogers of this city, of which Mr Rogers has been president for many years. The attachments were placed by Deputy Sheriff Wm Crowley and by Deputy Sheriff Wm Crowley and another for the Gloucester National Bank. The proceeding in both cases was at the instance of the Corn Exchange National Bank of Chicago, which is said to recover a judgment for $20,000 and $1,000 in Boston.

Buried in a Sand Bank

Bellefonte N H May 5—Mrs Hiram Bell and Mrs Frank Bell were buried in the sand bank near their homes while gathering sand. Mrs Bell was dead when taken out. Mrs Bell was still living but died in a few hours. Mrs Bell's husband was also buried in the sand but was dug out alive.

To Talk Over Reform Movements

Bonny Eagle Murderer was Not Insane

Portland May 5—A special to the Press from Saco says that after due deliberation and examination of fifteen witnesses the coroner's jury in the Lane case returned a verdict that the substance of which was that John W. Lane did wilfully and with malice aforethought commit the crimes charged to him, viz:

The murder of his wife, May Fuller Lane, and infant son John Gordon Lane. The inference from the wording of the verdict is that the jury disbelieved the theory of insanity which has been so generally held.

After Twenty-eight Years

Newburyport Mass May 5—Mrs Anna E. Mills of Worcester has written to her boy, Fred G. Mills of this city, whom she has not seen for 28 years that she will come here to call on him.

Mills who is an employe of the street railway was taken from his home when an infant by his father, Col James A. Mills, who is now somewhere in the west. Mrs Mills recently learned that her boy until recently when she heard he was living here and on investigation found the report true.

Telegraphic Notes

U. S. Commissioner Shields Tuesday afternoon announced his decision in the case of Captain Edward D. Reed, of the American ship Thos. F. Oakes, who was charged with cruelty to his crew on the voyage from Hong Kong to New York. On the trip several sailors died and when the vessel was towed into port a month ago the remaining members of the crew were helpless with scurvy. Commissioner Shields says that, "in his opinion, the facts warrant the placing of the matter before the United States grand jury. Upon this finding Captain Reed is held to await further developments, which will probably be an indictment.

In striking out of the section of the tariff bill the words "withdrawn for consumption" the committee made provision for this in a new section as follows: "That on and after the day when this act shall go into effect all goods, wares and merchandise previously imported, for which no entry has been made, and all goods, wares and merchandise previously entered without payment of duty and under bond for warehousing, transportation or any other purpose, for which no permit of delivery to the importer of his agent has been issued, shall be subjected to no other duty upon the entry or the withdrawal thereof than if the same were imported respectively after that date."

Mrs Sarah A. Hathaway, a resident of Lakeside Cottage, died Tuesday afternoon, after a brief illness at Methuen, aged.

Highwaymen Operating About Hebronville, Mass.

Attleboro Mass, May 5—News has been received here that three highwaymen have been operating among the residents of Hebronville, a small village three miles south of here and a state of terror prevails there.

John O'Brien was held up late Monday evening. One of the men took from him 75 cents and told "You're not the fellow we're looking for," and allowed him to go his way.

Early Monday morning three men attempted to break into the residence of Napoleon de Rosier, but were frightened away by the occupant, who was armed.

Sunday night Leslie Grant, a young man, was on his way to church when he was attacked by the robbers, who knocked him down an embankment 80 feet high and injured him severely. They took his chain and gold watch. He finally broke away and during his sight the robbers fired several shots from a pistol at him.

The same evening Mrs. Thomas Pickett was chased by two men, who being overtaken on the way home. The officers are inclined to believe that the highwaymen are the same who burned and robbed several Providence stores.

The residents of Hebronville are thoroughly alarmed.

A noble gift to the world, Dr. Johnson's English Dictionary. Easy, bless him.

ALL OVER THE STATE.

A Farmington despatch says: The unexpected action of Major S. Gifford Belcher in asking the village corporation for the sum of $8,600 in order to enforce payment of the railroad bonds issued by the corporation in 1870, is now thought to be favorable to a final compromise by all parties. Last week when the writ was served, the corporation officials feared that a satisfactory compromise could not be effected but Tuesday from the reports of the deposit of titles in the People's Trust Co., of Portland the situation is now hopeful. C. A. Hight of Portland, who represents the Edward Clark bondholders of Boston, deposited his titles Tuesday in compliance with the compromise terms and one thousand more were deposited by another party subject to the compromise. Still other bondholders have notified their willingness to accept the terms of the compromise. Geo. W. Wheeler, the president of the People's Trust Co., stated Tuesday that $10,000 in titles had already been turned in and that the necessary sixty five per cent of the entire issue was practically assured.

Mrs Noveire Duroche, of Lewiston, fell from the second story window of her house on Knox street and was seriously injured Tuesday night. She was taken to the French hospital. Her recovery is doubtful.

A Somerset correspondent contributes this story of a misunderstanding, which he says is vouched for by several good story tellers. A number of years ago Sumner Soule was in attendance at an evening prayer meeting in a rural school house. Sumner is a bashful man and in the course of the evening the revivalist asked appealingly: "Won't some soul come forward and be saved?" Now Sumner is familiarly called "Sum" and he at once got up and left the house, remarking later that the person was too blamed familiar, and the idea of asking him right out in meeting to come forward.

A lad 18 years of age by the name of Chadwick, living at Crow's Island is entirely blind in the day time. The cause however is not as bad as it might be for the boy like the owl, can see perfectly well in the night time. The boy's father told a young man from Chebeague who visited the island recently, that his son could find even a small object as a pin in a nearly dark room. The boy tells his why troubled about the island, which is small, and cut saw wood.

The funeral of the late John J. Perry, of Portland, was held Tuesday afternoon at his late residence on Cumberland street. Many of the members of Cumberland Bar were in attendance and there was a large company of friends present. The services were simple and impressive and were conducted by Rev A. W. Potts, who delivered an address admirably setting forth the fine qualities in the character of the deceased and his busy and influential public life. The pall bearers were Messrs Mark P. Emery, D. A. Meaher, George F. McQuillan and F. P. Chase. The official board of Chestnut street Methodist church attended the funeral in a body.

In Portland this year the average temperature for April was 41 degrees one higher than the mean for 26 years that new charter has been under discussion.

Frank H. Colley, a rising young lawyer of Portland has accepted the invitation extended by the Union Veterans of Saco to deliver the Memorial address at Saco.

The new Harpswell boat Aucadocco was successfully launched from the yard of the Portland Ship Building Co Monday morning. It was not an ideal day for launching but there was a fair sized crowd from the city in attendance and none seemed to mind the drenching rain so absorbed were they in watching the launch. At 11.10 the word was given to drive the wedges and just seven minutes later the boat ran slowly down the way and plunged into the water amidst the cheers of those on board. The tug James Samson was in waiting and towed her back to the wharf. Later she will be taken to the Portland Co to receive her machinery. The Aucadocco will have a horizontal boiler of about two hundred horse power and a powerful compound engine with cylinders 16 and 30 inches in diameter and 15 inches stroke. She is to be commanded by Capt. W. Bryant.

A Lewiston woman while in one of the large cities of the West a few years ago, went into a store for a pair of shoes and after showing several pairs the salesman finally came back from the shelves with a satisfied air and the remark: "Here are an especially fine pair that I know will suit you. They came from Hallowell, Me." The wife of a dry goods merchant recently returned from Europe had a somewhat similar experience. She brought back with her among other things, a piece of printed cotton fabric which had caught her fancy in Paris and for which she paid 20 cents per yard. Her husband when he saw it thought it strangely familiar and when he opened it out he found that the ticket on it was that of an American printing concern whose goods he was in the habit of handling selling this particular line at not more than 10 cents per yard.

The Hallowell Improvement Society acting on the suggestion and with the co-operation of several interested citizens have decided to invite all abl-bodied men old and young, to "land a barrel" at cleaning up the streets of Hallowell in the forenoon of Arbor day and the ladies are to provide a dinner in Society Hall opposite the library, for all who will thus help in the good work. The plan of operations has not yet been fully decided upon but will be given out later.

THE SECOND DAY

Of Bangor's Enjoyable and Successful Musical Festival.

Mr. Hamlin Lectures and Mrs. Walker Sings in the Afternoon.

A Miscellaneous Programme of Songs Given in the Evening.

The musical festival at City Hall has continued success on Wednesday and proved as pleasing and beneficial as was indicated by the opening event on Tuesday evening

At 3 p m Mr Charles E Hamlin son of Gen Charles Hamlin of this city, and formerly musical critic of the New York Tribune, began his lecture upon 'The Future of Music in America before a fair sized audience Mr Hamlin s presentation of the subject showed deep thought an intimate knowledge of matters musical in this country and in Europe and an interesting method of treatment He presented some original and striking ideas and held the appreciative attention of his hearers It was a lecture well worth listening to

Mr C E Hamlin s Lecture

Mr Hamlin began with an admission that there was a time when he severely criticized Bangor for leaving undone that it should have done in the interests of music, but on his return home after an absence of ten years he found a musical community that has brought a new life into the city His part, was therefore to applaud, encourage and suggest rather than find fault

He then went on to say I shall accordingly make the general condition of music in advance my theme My subject 'The Future of Music in America must be taken in a figurative, rather than a literal sense When a fair minded critic considers the youth of this Republic and that an independent order of things exists, he must admit that music has made a creditable progress in the United States It is a question of time when we shall develop an artistic life in this country commensurate with our industrial achievements

The time is not far distant when art will become as great a factor of our national life as it is in the nations of the old world We have in New York Boston Chicago and Cincinnati cities which are recognized by all Europe as great centers and important factors in the world of music formerly we had to take what musical talent we could get Now we have almost invariably the first choice and often deplete the European capitals of their favorites In New York city for the last six or seven years we have had the best performances of grand opera to be found in the world Except, of course, the performances at Bayreuth

The fact that this high operatic standard has been maintained in New York so long proves that there is an advanced musical public in that city and that opera has come to stay in New York In Boston we have one of the best symphony orchestras in the world and in the opinion of some able critics it is the best The programmes of the last symphony concerts in Boston, New York Chicago and Cincinnati may be favorably compared with those in Berlin and other musical centres of Germany They are of a higher grade than those of London As for Paris the severely classic is severely let alone outside of the opera houses

The richness of the musical field in the United States is attested by the what body of some of the best musicians the world has produced who have come here to cultivate it One of the most striking signs of the times is the advent of the American soprano Emma Eames Lillian Nordica and Aglaie Louise Cary all daughters of Maine who have reached the highest places in grand opera ever attained by American women

Mr Hamlin here described the voices and characteristics of these singers and then went on to say

It is a pleasure now to speak of our American composers We have already produced a group of composers whose music is heard with respect in the concert rooms of Germany I would mention Prof Knowles Paine, of Harvard, Edward A McDowell, of Columbia, George W Chadwick of the New England Conservatory and Dudley Buck as the representative quartette of our composers It is an open secret among the critics and composers of the old world that McDowell is regarded as the coming composer of the age He has rare originality and a watchful, intentive faculty that enables him to reveal to you your inner moods and thoughts

The most convincing proof to my mind which the American people have furnished in recent times that they are in the life of the musical world and that they may be in the van, is the enthusiasm and intelligence with which they have received Wilhelm Richard Wagner This is because the American people are in music as in other departments of life

Mr Hamlin at this point gave an excellent sketch of Wagner and his works He stated that Wagner repeated the protest of common sense argument against the idiotic regime which once completely dominated the musical world He embodied a school who believed that life should be as faithfully reproduced in the opera as in the drama In fact he called opera music drama

His music expresses his ideas as clearly as his plays He is simply logical In other words Wagner music tells the story of his action on the stage Thus generally speaking, his music was descriptive, but he was more than descriptive, he was analytical He not only painted the action of his characters but he expressed their thoughts in his music He developed the intellectual psychological possibilities of music as well as the emotional

Wagner s music is true to life The music aids in establishing the illusion this is one reason why Wagner holds his audiences spellbound as no other composer has Wagner's "Die Meister singer" is the loveliest thing in all art next to Shakespeare's comedy "As You Like It" The force of the Wagnerian music-drama as compared with the old Italian opera is like an irresistible mountain torrent compared with a pretty, shallow, babbling brook

Regarding the solution of the operatic problem Mr Hamlin said I believe we shall work out our salvation in art as we have in other things on the American plan In the last fifty years a great leisure class has been developed in this country and with their immense fortunes they will be great factors in aiding artistic and educational enterprises in the United States

In New York city many of the wealthier families constitute the stockholders in the Metropolitan Opera House. The seats are which they pay for their private boxes amount to a subsidy. New York's example will probably be followed by other cities and that being to be the way by which we shall get our established opera

Our philanthropists and wealthy men who are endowing our museums should next turn their attention to establishing models upon which opera should be conducted in the future

Our philanthropists and wealthy men who are endowing our museums should next turn their attention to establishing models upon which opera should be conducted in the future have more when the wealthy men of other cities see the work they are doing Art is a matter of supply and demand and now that the demand for the best music is increasing all over the country it is a matter of time when it will be supplied

The wealthy classes have set an example of co-operation in opera which people in more moderate circumstances and those living in places remote from musical centers should follow We should introduce the subscription opera and theatre plan in vogue in Germany They support their opera and theatres about as we support our churches, that is to say a society pledges itself to raise a certain sum of money for the support of the opera or theatre The members therefore have a right to designate the class of entertainment. Then they keep their standards high and the floating public has the privilege of admission

This is a question of diverting money into new channels The American people spend more money on amusements than any other nation and don t get the most beneficial results Witness the execrable line of entertainment at the theatres, the juvenile parade, and fuss and feathers spectacle that popular societies make all for the questionable pleasure of strutting along the streets behind a big brass band

Their uniforms, picnics, excursions and balls cost money that could have been better used in other ways

We must cultivate local, artistic atmosphere, and I am glad to see that Bangor is doing its share of the musical work like your local symphony concerts and the only fault I had to find was that they were stopped too soon

I am glad to find that the public schools of Bangor are up to the times Mrs Tilton has the right idea in making tone production the basis of her system of instruction Tone production is the alphabet of vocalism I am glad to find that the energy and enthusiasm of Mrs Tuck have resulted in the Dirigo Club I want to say too that Miss Merrill s trained choir in St John s Episcopal church ought to be a matter of local pride and is a most creditable institution

This leads to a subject upon which I wish to say a final word There is a great work for some American to do in reforming the music sung in our Sunday schools I respect Mr Moody, but I regret the Moody and Sankey hymns Music has character The Moody and Sankey hymns show that they were written for the purpose of producing emotional excitement Compare them with reverence breathing hymns like 'Abide with Me, Lead Kindly Light' 'Denais' Autumn and others of that class

The difference is that between a reverential strong man who speaks from his heart and the demagogue who plays on the galleries

Exercise the same care over your music your children sing in their homes, churches and schools that you do over the books they read

Music enters into their lives and affects their characters Music is a powerful moral agent and a potent civilizer It is the most effective aid the Christian church has to day

At the conclusion of the lecture Mrs Jenny Patrick Walker sang, with very pleasing effect and was given a warm applause Mrs Jewell acted as accompanist with much skill

The Ball Game

The programme was inaugurated by the first ball game in the Maine College League, it being between M S C and Bowdoin, with the result that Bowdoin won by a score of 3 to 1 in one of the prettiest games played in the Maine League in a long time A large crowd was present and the M S C students made the welkin ring with continuous cheering It was a lively game

Up to the fifth inning neither side could get a run try as hard as they would, but the ice was then broken by Bowdoin, which tallied twice Wignott s three-bagger being the opening wedge In the next inning Bowdoin got another run and M S C followed suit in this way The batter hit to Bacon, the Bowdoin short stop a crack player by the way who made a neat stop but a low throw to first and the batter made the entire circuit of the bases

The score remained unchanged to the close of the game The last M S C man went out on a pretty pick up by Bacon and throw to Hull on second for the M S C man who was forced from first base

M S C played a game which should give its supporters much encouragement Some reckless base running was indulged in and the batting was light but the fielding was good in the main and the team may be expected to give a good account of itself in future games Crockett pitched a strong steady game and was well supported by Palmer

Bodge s work in the box for Bowdoin was remarkably effective only three single hits being made off him He was a little wild however giving four bases on balls Capt Hunter, behind the bat was all right and made a fine foul catch He also caught three would be base stealers at third and one at second Wignott s three-bagger was a hummer The team played very steadily throughout Bowdoin made 7 hits for 10 bases and errors M S C made 3 hits and 4 errors

The umpiring of Daniel W Nason, Esq of Bangor was entirely impartial and conscientious and showed good judgment on balls and strikes and base decisions The Maine College League would make no mistake in having him umpire all of its games when that is possible If he would accept the position

The Bowdoin team returned to Brunswick on the midnight train

The Dress Parade

After the ball game the Coburn Cadets under command of Lieut Royden U S A gave a dress parade They formed on the campus front and then paraded upon the ball field led by the college band which is a credit to the institution The evolutions were executed with the precision of military veterans and the cadets had the admiration of all beholders

The Drill and Ball

Governor Powers and wife and members of his staff were present and were much interested in the exercises

The drill was followed by a reception and ball participated in by many Pullen s orchestra furnished splendid music Delicious refreshments were served by Fox & Co of Bangor

Publisher Held As a Burglar

Edward W Walsh of No 5 7 Hancock street Brooklyn who is proprietor of a New York publishing house and son of a well known writer, Mario Walsh was arrested as a burglar on Sunday night The arrest, it is alleged, was due to the officiousness of the police, and Mr Walsh spent some little time in the Fourteenth precinct station house with a genuine outfit Mr Walsh had been writing some letters and went out to post them

The police who were out looking for a burglar were convinced that he was their man and hustled him into the patrol wagon and to the station There his name was taken and he was placed in a cell in spite of his protests

The burglary occurred in the house of George A Kunz at No 624 A McDonough street who was away on Sunday afternoon Upon his return at 8 o'clock he heard a noise and saw a man jump from the rear window He raised an alarm and several pistol shots were fired which brought to the place Policeman Patterson He, after a hot pursuit caught the burglar Some one else however, had sent a call to police headquarters and the patrol wagon was sent out One of Mr Kunz s neighbors excitedly pointed out Mr Walsh as the man who had been seen climbing over the fence Patterson s prisoner who gave his name as James Farrell and Walsh were taken to the station together About $30 in jewelery was found on Farrell, and this was identified by Mr Kunz as his property

Mr Walsh was taken before Justice Worth Monday morning and admitted to bail He is highly indignant at his arrest

Mr Walsh was seen at his home by a Tribune reporter Monday night Mr Walsh is financial manager of the Mascot Publishing Company at No 61 Buckman street New York city He is an active member of St John the Baptist s church Mr Walsh was asked to tell the story of his arrest He said

On Sunday morning I remained at home and wrote about forty postal cards I had been longing about the house all day, and had on an old sack suit of clothes At about 10 o clock I slipped on my old overcoat and a slouch hat and went out to the mailbox with the cards The air was somewhat brace g and I strolled about the streets aimlessly

In McDonough street near Saratoga avenue I saw two men approaching me at a rapid pace They headed straight for me and as the street was dark and deserted I decided to get out of the way as quickly as possible I turned the corner of Saratoga avenue and then started on a run The men had also started to run and when they turned the corner they drew their pistols and commanded me to halt threatening to fire if I refused This confirmed my suspicion that they were footpads, and that I was about to be held up, but as they had me at their mercy I had to give in To my great surprise, when they came up, one of them told me I was under arrest they were joined by a patrol-man in uniform and together they marched me to the station house, guarding me closely all the way

At the station house I explained who I was, and asked that word be sent to my mother. I protested that they had the wrong man, but they put me in a cell and kept me there all night, refusing to send word to my folks

I never heard of such an outrageous piece of business in my life, and I shall look for redress through the courts I am held in $1 000 bail and shall demand a trial and acquittal.

Life In Great Cities.

And as to the tendency of the growth of great cities to enervate nations there is no proof of it at all unless we identify the life of great cities with the passion for idleness and pleasure and self indulgence which sometimes but by no means universally accompanies their growth. When you get a large proletariat living as that of ancient Rome and possibly of Nineveh and Babylon did on the alms of the rich and powerful then, no doubt you have the conditions of a thoroughly unnatural and unhealthy life and no one can wonder at the rapid decay of such cities and of the nations which gloried in them But where the honest working class far outnumbers the proletariat, where the middle class is of distributive and manufacturers and profession men are laborious and energetic, and even the class that lives on the accumulated wealth contains a considerable speciality of serious and disinterested workers, we do not believe that there is the smallest evidence of any greater danger in the life of the city than in the life of the agricultural village or the pastoral tribe. Indeed we should regard Olive Schreiner s picture of the life of the modern Boers as indicating a condition of things more prolific of morbid elements with its almost complete absence of any stirring or active intellectual life than any kind of modern life that is honestly laborious at all The Boer life is too simply too destitute of stirring thought or effort to be altogether natural It needs at least the old element of danger and necessary vigilance to redeem it even from being [illegible] —London Spectator

Growing the Bermuda Lily

"The Bermuda lily should be planted in deep pots writes Robert Rexford in The Ladies' Home Journal Put in a soil allow layer of soil over the drainage material which should cover the bulbs of this plant and on this place the bulb which should be covered lightly Leave it like this until a stalk starts Then fill in as the stalk reaches and until the pot is full of earth. I would not advise the use of any fertilizer after bringing a plant to the light for the compost in which it was planted contains an ordinary amount of nutrient Development is quite likely to be sufficiently rapid on the ordinary rich soil and the application of a fertilizer will so hasten it at the plant will be forced beyond healthy limits Watch the pots when in full growth and give water when and then if needed Also to keep the soil moist—never let it dry out When you bring them up do not place them in a very warm room A room in which the temperature is from 50 to 60 degrees for them if it is fire proof is one in which the heat is likely to run up to a high figure When the bulbs are in full bloom be sure to keep them as cool as possible for as long a time as possible
